

EXAMPLE OF PHOTO SHOOT FLOW

OVERVIEW

In addition to pre-planning all your outfits and props, you'll need a photo shoot flow list to make sure you can move quickly between shots and don't miss any of the great ideas in your head.

Think of the flow list as your photo shoot roadmap.

1. Sequence of Shots: List out the shots in the order you plan to take them. This helps in managing time and transitions between different setups or locations.
2. Details and Specifics: Include specific details like outfit changes, props needed for each shot, and the type of shot (portrait, action, candid).
3. Flexibility for Spontaneity: While structure is important, leave room for spontaneous shots. Sometimes, the most impactful images are unplanned.

Give a copy of your roadmap to your photographer and anyone else who is with you on your shoot.

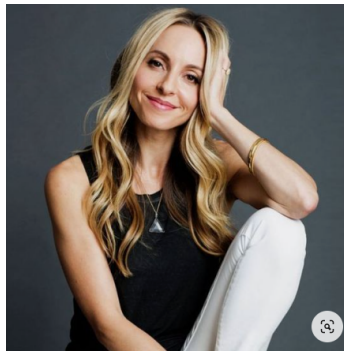

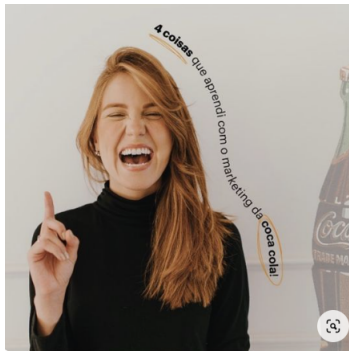

Most importantly ... have FUN!!!

Here's an example of several of how we created our road map for a big shoot that included over a dozen outfit changes.
